

Florida universities get $200 million to bolster performance

Florida universities get $200 million in performance funding

June 17, 2014|By Denise-Marie Quinn | Orlando Sentinel

After years of financial struggles, Florida universities are in the unusual position of having to figure out how best to spend what amounts to a $200 million bonus check

F B

s

a

i o

He said taking money from schools that do not do as well could cause them to fall further behind. He called the award allotments "trivial," not enough to fund significant changes on campus. University operating budgets total more than $4 billion.

Auxter also argued that if state universities paid better, more top professors would remain in Florida to work with students. In fact,